

HUW DAVIES GALLERY 11–21 February 2010

H o l i d a y S n a p s

This year we are offering members three opportunities to show work in group exhibitions, allowing them to see and think about their images alongside the work of experienced and not so experienced artists.

Holiday Snaps is the first of those opportunities. This is a postcard show aiming to evince (we had assumed) happy memories of holidays past. Looking at the range of work members have presented it's clear we should not have assumed the images would be uniformly cheery and light hearted. Nevertheless, we are very happy members have taken up the idea of an informal and inexpensive exhibition opportunity with great enthusiasm. And that there is such a good spread of subject matter and technique.

Some members have holidayed far away, sharing a mix of exotic places and faces with us in Holiday Snaps. The serious purpose of Tony Stewart's holidays, for example, is evident in his images arising from a long time interest in the social effects of major dam building projects in parts of rural India. Then there is Richard Scherer's enigmatic reflections and advertising poster SEBASTIAN® PROFESSIONAL; what are you telling us Richard? As usual, Andrée Lawrey offers us beautiful, thoughtful images, as have Scott Hannaford, Lorna Sim and Ed Whalan. Alan Charlton's series speaks of an obviously happy holiday on the New South Wales North Coast. There is plenty to admire and ponder in Holiday Snaps.

Our solution to the always challenging curatorial problem of ordering and placing images was made easier by that remarkable invention of our forefathers, the alphabet. But to avoid the stigma of always coming last for the 'w', 'x', 'y' and 'z's we reversed the order for this hang, hoping not to add to the troubles of members with 'alphabetical order' phobia.

With around than 500 images from 52 participants, Holiday Snaps has repeated the 'bigger and better' trend of members shows over the past few years. We are very pleased to welcome so many first time artists to the HUW DAVIES GALLERY—including Tricia Woodhouse, Gabriel Spira, Anna Saboisky, Anne Rosenzweig, Karen O'Connor, Isa Menzies, Judith McDougal, Leanne McCauley, Jane Greagg, Jane Dalton, Karen Dace, Tom Cliff, Phil Carter, Monique Butselaar, James Bond, Gail Barton and Catherine Bannister.

The two remaining group show opportunities for members are Access all areas (The PhotoAccess Members Show) from 20 May to 6 June and HIY (Hang it yourself) 2010 from 2 to 19 September. We look forward to seeing strong member representation in these shows as well.

We thank members for offering their images for sale and for donating a second copy of each to help with our fundraising.
